John Wieland Introduces Custom Homebuilding Program to the Triangle

Award-Winning Builder Will Now Build on Individuals' Homesites

RALEIGH, NC – John Wieland Homes and Neighborhoods has announced the opening of a new custom homebuilding opportunity in the Triangle area. Widely recognized as the Southeast's leading builder in design and quality and currently building new homes in six Triangle area neighborhoods, Wieland will now offer custom homebuilding services to new home buyers who wish to build on their own homesite or purchase a homesite not located in an active John Wieland neighborhood.

“With this new offering, we feel like John Wieland now has it all in the Triangle,” says Marge Knutson, Vice President of John Wieland's Raleigh Division. “We've been building great John Wieland neighborhoods here for more than 18 years. Now we have the flexibility to offer home buyers John Wieland's signature design and quality in any setting or on any homesite they choose.” John Wieland also provides the homebuilding industry's only 5 Year – 20 Year Warranty on every new John Wieland home.

Long time custom homebuilder Craig Wieser has joined the John Wieland team to handle sales for this new initiative. Wieser has over 35 years of real estate and custom homebuilding experience in central Florida, Colorado, Charlotte and most recently Raleigh-Durham. He is an active member of the National Association of Home Builders. “I'm excited to join the John Wieland team in Raleigh and offer buyers a truly high quality custom product at a great value,” says Wieser.

John Wieland Homes also currently has new homes under construction in six Triangle neighborhoods including master-planned WoodCreek in Holly Springs, Cameron Pond in Cary and River Run in North Raleigh. The company will officially launch its custom homebuilding program with a showcase design in The Gates at Ethan's Glen in North Raleigh, set to begin construction within the month.
